

Leading The Way to Quality Assessment Practices

April 7 & 8, 2011

Hilton Garden Inn, Downtown Saskatoon

Presenters

Dr. Anne Davies

Classroom Connections International
www.annedavies.com

Sandra Herbst

Connections Publishing
www.connect2learning.com

Audience

School administrators, teacher leaders, department heads, PLC leaders and personnel in charge of professional learning at the school and district levels.

Leaders need unique support while implementing assessment for learning strategies throughout a school or district.

Institute Outcomes

During this interactive two-day session, participants will:

- consider indicators of effective quality classroom assessment
- explore ways to support teacher learning
- think about ways to model the principles of assessment for learning in their own leadership practice
- consider emerging changes to evaluation and reporting structures
- identify ways to transform barriers that get in the way of implementation
- revisit their own plans and strategies
- reflect on their learning and engage in self-reflection and group dialogue

These two days are full of proven and practical strategies and techniques for leaders to use. Dr. Anne Davies and Sandra Herbst will:

- present key research findings and articulate imperatives that underlie assessment in these times
- share actual classroom and school video footage for analysis of ways to involve students and adult learners in the assessment process
- review key principles of adult learning
- share stories from their experiences of working with districts and schools across North America and abroad
- provide learning strategies that can be used in a variety of contexts
- provide access to a customized website related to the Institute

Materials

The Leaders' Series (Leading the Way to Making Classroom Assessment Work and Transforming Barriers to Assessment for Learning) and handouts

Dr. Anne Davies

Author, consultant, and researcher, Anne Davies, Ph.D., applies her expert knowledge of developing quality classroom assessment practices toward her mission to "increase the possibility of learning for all students." With more than 30 years' experience in education, Anne has demonstrated her skills in a variety of roles, including classroom teacher, school district coordinator, department of education planner, school administrator, and university instructor.

A world-renowned keynote presenter and professional development consultant, Anne's genuine care and commitment to support educators and their important work make her an approachable and insightful specialist.

Sandra Herbst

Sandra Herbst, Director of Professional Learning at Building Connections Publishing Inc., is a noted system leader, author, speaker, and consultant with almost twenty years of experience in education. She has taught at the Early, Middle, and Senior Years levels. Her passion for learning from others has led her through working as a classroom teacher specializing in French and Music, a school administrator, a program consultant, an Assistant Superintendent of Schools in a large District in Manitoba, and a variety of consulting positions.

Sandra has led professional development workshops for more than eight years and was drawn to the field of assessment for learning because of the results she observed in classrooms. She has co-authored two books on the topic of assessment.
